

MISSOURI CONVENTION WILL MEET HERE

Local Chapter of D. A. R. Have Secured State Gathering for October 28, 29 and 30.

The state convention of the Daughters of the American Revolution will meet in Lexington October 28, 29 and 30.

The Lexington-Lafayette chapter of the D. A. R. put forth special effort to secure this gathering for Lexington and it is now up to the people of the town to make plans for entertaining the visitors in a way that will reflect special credit on our people.

About one hundred and fifty visitors are expected and the three days' session will be devoted to the "good of the order," interspersed with such entertainment as the hospitable people of Lexington provide.

The D. A. R. as an organization is performing much practical and effective work in pushing the movement for the Ocean to Ocean highway and the public is just now especially considerate and friendly with "road boosters" of every description. We not only can welcome the D. A. R. as an organization consecrated to keeping ever green the memory of the pioneers by rededicating the spirit of early days, but we can welcome them as the real pioneers in the now national movement to build a great public highway across the continent.

EVERY DAY A

FARMER'S DAY

Special Effort Being Made to Make the State Fair a Practical Benefit to the Farmer.

The Missouri State Fair at Sedalia, September 27-October 3, gives wonderful promise of a great exhibition and largely increased attendance. Coming just before the American Royal at Kansas City, the Illinois State Fair at Springfield, and the New State Fair at Muskogee, Okla., and with a largely increased premium list, all departments of the exhibition will be strong, especially the live stock show. An example of the prospects for the show may be seen in the entry list for the World's Greatest Saddle Horse Stake, in which there has been twenty entries.

In arranging for the coming exhibition at Sedalia, particular attention has been paid to the practical interests of the farmer. The model farm on the Fair Grounds; lectures and demonstrations by experts of the Federal Station for the prevention of Hog Cholera; plowing, dairy and egg-laying contests; the boys' State Fair school, premiums in canning and breadmaking for girls and corn growing, stock and corn judging for the boys of the farm, and an especially attractive display of farm machinery will be among the features.

Monday, September 30, will be "Automobile Day," and thousands of automobile parties are expected to visit and enjoy the special features that have been arranged for that day. Tuesday is "Sedalia Day," Wednesday "Agricultural Implement Dealers' Day," Thursday "Governor's Day," Friday "Missouri Editors' Day," and every day "Missouri Farmers' Day."

Several thousand dollars have been expended on improvements on the grounds and new buildings and many free amusements have been secured to entertain the visitors, among them Thavin's

Band and Grand Opera Sextette, latest model Monoplane, a four-drop balloonist, a splendid racing card and five big acts of vaudeville.

The homes of Sedalia will be thrown open to those who prefer not to stop at the hotels, and an information bureau located on the public square of Sedalia, with a branch office on the Fair Grounds will furnish messenger service to direct visitors to their destinations and furnish information.

The catalogue and premium list may be secured free on application to Secretary John T. Stinson, Sedalia, Mo.
